Four professors joins prestigious ranks of AAAS fellows

By Barry Ray

The Florida State University has long been recognized internationally for the high quality of research conducted on its campus in a wide variety of academic disciplines. That stellar reputation was reaffirmed in January as four Florida State professors — an oceanographer, a marine biologist, a physicist and a chemist — were elevated to the rank of fellow by the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS).

The Florida State faculty members selected as AAAS fellows for 2011, and the language provided on their AAAS citations, are as follows:

- Philip Froelich, FSU’s Francis Eppes Professor of Oceanography, Department of Earth, Ocean and Atmospheric Science, “for foundational contributions toward the understanding of the geochemistry of marine sediments, and the application of

- Don R. Levitan, FSU’s William T. Schieffelin and Euphemia Geer Professor of Physics, Department of Physics, “for foundational contributions toward the understanding of the geochemistry of marine sediments, and the application of

- Per Arne Rikvold, FSU’s John H. Pernick Professor of Physics, Department of Physics, “for foundational contributions toward the understanding of the geochemistry of marine sediments, and the application of

- Oliver Steinbock, FSU’s Robert A. and Clara B. Frye Professor of Chemistry, Department of Chemistry, “for foundational contributions toward the understanding of the geochemistry of marine sediments, and the application of

Solomon receives 2011 MLK Distinguished Service Award

By Jeffery Seay

Offering encouragement and compassion to the students of The Florida State University has become the hallmark of Vanessa Solomon, a program associate with the FSU Center for Leadership and Civic Education. Many of them call her “Miss V” or “V” — terms of endearment from those who have come to appreciate her friendly smile and genuine concern for their well-being.

“I’ll ask them, ‘What’s going on in your world?’” Solomon said. “Sometimes I hear good things, but sometimes they share that they don’t know what they’re going to do with their lives. Then we just start talking about life.

“The most rewarding part of my job is knowing that students consider my office to be a comfortable, warm and nurturing space for every kind of individual that exists on this campus,” she said.

Last month, during the university’s annual celebration of the life and legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Solomon was presented with the 2011 Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Distinguished Service Award in recognition of “outstanding scholarly excellence and strong commitment to Dr. King’s ideals.”

Spread the Word

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has selected The Florida State University for inclusion in its Community Engagement classification for demonstrating a mission, culture, leadership, resources and practices that support “dynamic and noteworthy community engagement.”

CASE honors FSU communicators

Several campus communicators have been honored for their extraordinary efforts to tell the good news of The Florida State University by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE), District III, in its 2009-2010 Circle of Excellence Awards competition. CASE District III covers both public and private universities throughout the Southeast.

College of Medicine

- Doug Carlson, director of Public Affairs and Communications, and Ron Hartung, assistant director of Communications, won a Special Merit Award for producing the College of Medicine’s 2009 Annual Report, which was the college’s first-ever annual report.

University Communications

For the fourth year in a row, News and Public Affairs, under the direction of Browning Brooks, has distinguished itself among its peers in the General News Writing category. Two of its research/news writers wrote award-winning news releases.

- Jill Elish, assistant director, won an Award of Excellence for the news release “Florida State to Help Military Wage War on Suicide,” about a new national research consortium led by Robert O. Lawton Distinguished Professor of Psychology Thomas Joiner. The release also was selected as a finalist for the Grand Award, with the winner to be announced at the CASE District III conference to be held in New Orleans Feb. 20-23.

- Barry Ray, a research/news writer, won a Special Merit Award for the news release “Virtual-Worlds Researcher’s Advice to Retailers: Go With the ‘Flow’,” about then-doctoral candidate Rob Hooker’s (Ph.D. ’10, Business) research of the growing market for virtual products, particularly in Internet virtual worlds, and factors that appear to increase the likelihood that people will make these types of purchases.

Both Elish’s and Ray’s news releases were edited by Brooks.

- University Communications won a Special Merit Award in the Media Relations Projects category for “FSU Takes Action in the Gulf,” about the university’s response to the Deepwater Horizon oil spill. The integrated communications project included news releases, pitches to national media, features in FSU publications, a blog, and radio and video reports. This was a joint effort between Visual Media and Promotions, under the direction of Dennis Schnittker, and News and Public Affairs.

“...This was a campuswide effort to tell the world about Florida State University’s leadership in providing solutions to this crisis,” Brooks said.

“The scale of the disaster was incredibly large, but we were able to track all the different ways that the people of Florida State University joined in the response to the spill,” Schnittker said. “This included providing scientific assessment and analysis of the oil flowing out of the well to conducting research on Florida’s beaches to measure the oil’s impact. The research is still going on.”

Outside attorneys: Tips on how to respond

A recent advisory ethics opinion issued by The Florida Bar has significance for all public employees in the state of Florida, including Florida State University faculty and staff.

Ethics Opinion 09-1, issued by The Florida Bar’s Board of Governors on Dec. 10, 2010, concludes that outside attorneys may not contact or communicate with employees of a public agency on a specific legal issue or controversy to which the agency is a party without the consent of the agency’s legal counsel. This opinion is legally binding for all attorneys under the jurisdiction of The Florida Bar.

As a consequence of this opinion, outside attorneys should not be contacting FSU employees regarding pending or active litigation. Regardless, should an outside attorney contact an FSU employee, the employee has no obligation to respond to the attorney’s questions about an issue or provide information or documents that they have reason to believe may involve litigation affecting the university. Instead, employees are urged to contact the university’s Office of the General Counsel immediately at (850) 644-4440 and make legal staff aware of the request. This will not only relieve the employee of the burden of dealing directly with outside attorneys but will also ensure that the university provides only legally required information.

Likewise, FSU faculty and staff who receive subpoenas, public records requests that may relate to litigation, or other legal documents relating to the university are also urged to make the Office of the General Counsel aware.

University employees may continue to respond to outside attorneys’ requests for information on general issues unrelated to litigation involving the university, such as responding to public records requests.
Law professor honored for work on behalf of children

The Youth Law Center, a national leader in helping children in the foster care and justice systems, has named Florida State University College of Law Clinical Professor Paolo Annino a Loren Warboys Unsung Hero for 2010.

The award is given to individuals who have made extraordinary efforts on behalf of children in the child welfare and juvenile justice systems.

Annino was recognized for his work on behalf of foster children and juvenile inmates as co-director of the law school’s Public Interest Law Center. Most recently, Annino conducted a nationwide study to make a landmark decision in Graham v. Florida. Justice Anthony M. Kennedy several times cited Annino’s study in writing the opinion. The court ruled that the Constitution prohibits the imposition of life without parole on a juvenile offender who did not commit homicide.

“I am truly honored to be recognized by my colleagues at the Youth Law Center for our work at the Public Interest Law Center,” Annino said. “I could not be receiving the Loren Warboys Unsung Hero Award without the energetic FSU law students who commit their education, time and passion to advocate for children.”

Pam Graham, director of both the Bachelor of Social Work Program and professional development for the College of Social Work, was the first recipient of the Loren Warboys Unsung Hero Award in 1993. Graham was honored for work she did as a medical social worker at Miami’s Jackson Memorial Hospital in the late 1980s.

Faculty, staff must follow guidelines for legislative session

The 2011 Florida legislative session begins Tuesday, March 8. University employees are asked to adhere to the following policies of The Florida State University:

•President Eric Barron and Assistant Vice President for Governmental Relations Kathleen Daly are the registered lobbyists for Florida State.

•No one at Florida State other than Barron and Daly is authorized to lobby for the university or the State University System.

However, the Legislature periodically requests faculty and/or staff members to attend committee meetings or formally respond to questions about certain issues. FSU employees who are asked to appear before a committee must notify Daly at (850) 644-4453 and submit a Legislative Contact Form prior to making the appearance.

The Legislative Contact Form can be found on the Governmental Relations website at www.govrel.fsu.edu. Employees who experience difficulty in accessing the form should call Governmental Relations at 644-4453 to obtain it.

A campus network of legislative liaisons representing each of the university’s divisions is currently in place. They are: Academic Affairs, Anne Blankenship, 644-0170; Athletics, Jennifer Garye, 644-3249; Budget and Analysis/Controller’s Office, Ralph Alvarez, 644-4203, or Michael Lake, 644-2478; College of Communications, Bob Pekurny, 644-3462; College of Education, Marcy Driscoll, 644-6885, or Sissi Carroll, 644-6885; College of Medicine, John Fogarty, 644-1346, or Laura Brock, 645-9429; College of Nursing, Lisa Plowfield, 644-3299; Faculty Senate, Eric Walker, 644-4869; Finance and Administration, Terry Fulcher, 645-4926; Financial Aid, Darryl Marshall, 644-1993; Florida State University Schools (Florida High), Lynn Wicker, 245-3703; Governmental Relations, Kathleen Daly, 644-4453; Human Resources, Joyce Ingram, 644-5457; Human Resources/Chief Diversity Officer, Renisha Gibbs, 644-8082; National High Magnetic Field Laboratory, Susan Ray, 644-9651; Physical Plant/Campus Design, Dennis Bailey, 644-3369, or Steve Adamick, 644-8136; Purchasing, Marcie Doolittle, 644-9719; Research, Beth Hodges, 644-3347; Student Affairs, Mary Coburn, 644-5590; Student Government, Vicki Dobiaynski, 644-0939; Student Government/Legislative Affairs, Mitchell Ghanie, 644-1653; and University Attorney, Mike Cramer, 644-4440.

Through this network, legislation that affects the university is routinely routed to appropriate departments and offices for timely responses and/or information. These responses are routed back to the division liaisons, to the Office of Governmental Relations, and ultimately to the lobbyists who will serve collectively on the university’s behalf.

Nothing here is intended to discourage FSU employees from exercising their individual rights as citizens or as members of groups or organizations not affiliated with the university. Such rights include the freedom to express their views on legislation, provided that the views are not presented as those of FSU, the State University System or a subunit of these.

this knowledge to the reconstruction of ocean history.”

•Don R. Levitan, Professor, Department of Biological Science, “for distinguished contributions to the field of marine invertebrate ecology and evolution, particularly for interpreting field and laboratory studies of broadcast spawning in a modern theoretical framework.”

•Per Arne Rikvold, Distinguished Research Professor and the James G. Skofronick Professor of Physics, Department of Physics, “for distinguished contributions to computational statistical physics and its interdisciplinary applications in condensed-matter and materials physics, electrochemistry, computer science, biology, and engineering.”

•Oliver Steinbock, Professor, Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry, “for distinguished contributions to the field of physical chemistry, particularly for the experimental study and the modeling of emergent phenomena in nonequilibrium systems.”

Election as a fellow of the AAAS is an honor bestowed upon association members by their peers. Fellows are recognized for meritorious efforts to advance science or its applications. “We are very pleased but not surprised by the recognition of Professors Froelich, Levitan, Rikvold and Steinbock as AAAS fellows,” said FSU Dean of the Faculties Anne Rowe. “They have had significant and stellar careers at The Florida State University, contributing not only to their own fields but working across disciplines to create knowledge. This recognition from other AAAS fellows is well deserved and reflects the health of the sciences at FSU.”

With the addition of Froelich, Levitan, Rikvold and Steinbock, Florida State now has 42 current and emeritus faculty members who are AAAS fellows.

Alzheimer’s conference targets caregivers and professionals

One of the world’s leading authorities on Alzheimer’s disease will be the keynote speaker Feb. 19 at Tallahassee’s 26th Annual Alzheimer’s Education and Training Conference. The conference, scheduled for 8 a.m.-3 p.m. at the Florida State University College of Medicine, offers both professional and caregiver tracks. It is open to the public and free, except for those seeking Continuing Medical Education or Continuing Education Unit credits.

Peter Whitehouse, author of “The Myth of Alzheimer’s: What You Aren’t Being Told About Today’s Most Dreaded Diagnosis” (2008), is the keynote speaker.

“Caregivers can bring their questions and learn about all kinds of subjects, from diagnosis to medications and to do everything they can to avoid things that didn’t go right in my life, and what I had to go back and redo,” she said.

Solomon, who has been working to earn her Associate of Arts degree from Tallahassee Community College since 2004, is set to graduate from TCC on April 30.

OFFICE OF DIVERSITY AND EQUAL OPPORTUNITY
In 1976, President Gerald Ford declared February as Black History Month. This year’s theme is “African-Americans and the Civil War.”

During the Civil War, there were approximately 180,000 African-American soldiers who served on the Union side. Of these, the most courageous were the men of the 54th Massachusetts infantry. On July 18, 1863, they attacked the Confederacy’s Fort Wagner in Charleston, S.C., becoming the first black infantry to lead an attack. Although the Union Army was unable to take Fort Wagner and the 54th incurred heavy casualties, the battle proved that African-American soldiers were determined and willing to fight oppressors.

“Once let the black man get upon his person the brass letters U.S., let him get an eagle on his button, and a musket on his shoulder, and bullets in his pocket, and there is no power on earth which can deny that he has earned the right to citizenship.” — Frederick Douglass

• RETIREMENT PLANNING SEMINAR: Wednesday, March 16, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., State Ballroom, Oglesby Union. Attendance may be considered time worked with supervisory approval. Information: Leasa Howard, (850) 644-4016 or retirement@admin.fsu.edu.

• DOUBLE DEDUCTIONS FOR BENEFITS: Beginning with their Feb. 11 paycheck, all nine- and 10-month faculty members and seasonal employees who are enrolled in state health, life and supplemental benefits began having double deductions taken from their paychecks. The deductions will end with the May paycheck. The additional deductions are taken out to prepay premiums for June, July, August and September. Regular deductions will resume with the first paycheck in September. Employees should review their paychecks during the double-deduction period to ensure that the deductions are correct. Information: Benefits Office, (850) 644-4015, or insben@admin.fsu.edu.

• IMPORTANT BENEFITS REMINDER: Any major life events (such as marriage, divorce, births or adoptions) that could affect an employee’s benefits must be reported to the People First Service Center no later than 31 days after the qualifying event by submitting a Qualifying Status Change form and supporting documentation. Information about Qualifying Status Changes: www.myflorida.com/mybenefits/Life_Events/LifeEvents.htm. Information: Benefits Office, (850) 644-4015 or insben@admin.fsu.edu.

• FLEXIBLE SPENDING ACCOUNTS PROGRAM: A grace period has been added to the plan year for medical reimbursement and dependent-care reimbursement accounts. Employees now have more time to use the services that can be reimbursed if they have used these tax-saving accounts. The grace period gives employees until March 15, 2011, to use the amounts in their Flexible Spending Accounts and to use eligible services for their 2010 contributions. Employees still must file all claims by April 15, 2011, so they will not lose all the money in their accounts. The grace period ends on March 15. If an employee does not submit claims for the plan year by the April 15, 2011, filing deadline for the entire amount they had withheld, they will lose the unused money. Information: Benefits Office, (850) 644-4015, or insben@admin.fsu.edu.

The open house is being held in conjunction with the Center for Advanced Power Systems (CAPS) and the Institute for Energy Systems, Economics and Sustainability (IESES).
Your colleagues are UFF members.
You should be, too!

UFF protects faculty rights in an era of increasing assaults on academic freedom and reduced educational funding. I am proud to be a member of the Union, proud to belong to an organization dedicated to promoting the interests of the scholars who teach the next generation of American leaders.
- Dr. Diane Roberts, Professor, Department of English

Only the UFF can provide a basis for negotiation of faculty rights with the University. Given the long history and current trend of collective bargaining in the United States, joining the UFF is the smart and quintessentially American thing to do.
- Dr. Scott Hannahs, Director, DC Facilities & Instrumentation Mag Lab, and American Physical Society Fellow

An overwhelming majority of the faculty voted to have the UFF act as faculty’s exclusive legal representative to the administration, and the UFF actively negotiates the terms and conditions of your employment. If you care about those, you owe it to yourself to get involved. If you like what the UFF is doing, support it. If you don’t, vote for change. Either way, you need to join.
- Dr. Ted Baker, Professor and Mainline Information Systems Chair, Department of Computer Science

Paid parental leave, salary compression, faculty losses: UFF-FSU has been steadfast in working on these critical issues, to the benefit of the University and the faculty working here.
- Dr. John Reynolds, Eagles Professor, Department of Sociology, and Director, Pepper Institute on Aging & Public Policy

UFF membership entitles you to:
- $1,000,000 in professional liability insurance
- $10,000 in life insurance
- $50,000 in accidental death insurance
- Two free half-hour legal non-employment-related legal consultations
- Discounts on home & auto insurance, and on publications
- A voice in defining UFF negotiating priorities
- UFF representation should you need to file a grievance

Police chief announces two key departmental promotions

Chief David L. Perry of the Florida State University Police Department has announced promotions for two of its officers: Jim Russell and Randy Chandler.

Russell, who holds the rank of major, has been promoted to deputy chief of police. Russell will assist and support Perry in every phase of the department’s mission, including the enforcement of criminal and traffic laws, and regulations and ordinances that preserve and protect life, health and property. In Perry’s absence, Russell will assume command and control of police operations.

Chandler, has been promoted from lieutenant to captain, and will serve as captain for operations. Chandler will oversee Uniform Police Operations for the FSU main campus — including communications and special operations — and for FSU Panama City. He also will manage and coordinate the shift supervisors, law enforcement officers and communications operators regarding day-to-day functions.

“I have full confidence in both Major Russell and Captain Chandler, and I know that the mission, goals and values of the department and university will continue to be top of mind as they take on these critical new roles,” Perry said.

RECOGNITIONS

Jon Jost (Athletics) has been named College Strength and Conditioning Coach of the Year by the National Strength and Conditioning Association (NSCA), January. The award recognizes commitment to the college strength and conditioning profession.

Steven Pfeiffer, Ph.D. (Educational Psychology and Learning Systems), is cited in “Nurture Shock: New Thinking about Children” by Po Bronson and Ashley Merryman. The book chronicles how many of modern society’s strategies for nurturing children are backfiring. Pfeiffer, author of the Gifted Rating Scales, is mentioned as an expert who cautions against classifying young children on the basis of a single early test result.

PRESENTATIONS

David W. Eccles, Ph.D. (Learning Systems Institute), and Elizabeth Goldsmith, Ph.D. (Human Sciences), had their research about successful strategies to achieve personal financial fitness featured in a podcast of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA), which was e-mailed to more than 630,000 securities representatives.

Eccles, Goldsmith and Paul Ward of Michigan Technological University offered up six strategies to “help burn off any excess balances you might owe and strengthen scrawny savings”: talk about your finances with your partner; talk to your employer; estimate how much money you will need to live on in retirement; forecast what you think you will have at the time you retire; maximize your savings; and minimize debt and interest payments. With a grant from the FINRA Investor Education Foundation, the trio of researchers spent three years studying the personal financial strategies of households.

Lilian Garcia-Roig (Art) recently closed two solo shows in Jackson- ville, Fla.: “Hyperbolic Nature” at the Museum of Contemporary Art and “More Than A Brush With Nature” at the University of North Florida Art Galleries. A catalog about the shows, published by the museum, included an essay by UNF art history Professor Debra Murphy about Garcia-Roig’s work. What’s more, Murphy wrote an extended article on Garcia-Roig, featured in Arbus, an arts and business magazine focusing on Northeast Florida. Garcia-Roig also delivered lectures on her work at both venues. She is currently participating in three group shows: “Southern Mix” at the Edge Zones Gallery, Miami; “New X 3” at the Spiral 1 Gallery, Asheville, N.C.; and “Fresh & Salty” at the Fort Worth Community Arts Center, Texas.

Melissa Gross, Ph.D. (Library and Information Studies), presented “Is Ignorance Really Bliss?: Understanding the Role of Informa- tion-Seeking in Coping with Severe Traumatic Stress among Refugees,” with Joung Hwa Koo and Yong Wan Cho, at a conference of the Association for Library and Information Science Education, San Diego.

Corryne Jörgensen, Ph.D., and Besiki Stvilia, Ph.D. (School of Library and Information Studies), made a presentation, “Assessing the Reuse Value of Socially Created Metadata for Image Indexing,” at the 2011 meeting of the Association for Library and Information Science Education (ALISE), San Diego. The paper examines the added value of using social terms from Flickr and the English Wikipedia in image indexing compared with using two expert-created controlled vocabularies: the Thesaurus for Graphic Materials and the Library of Congress Subject Headings.

Don Latham, Ph.D., and Melissa Gross, Ph.D. (Library and Information Studies), presented “Information Literacy and Its Discontents: Lessons from College Students with Below-Proficient Skills” at a conference of the Association for Library and Information Science Education, San Diego, January.

Mark Messersmith (Art) recently closed a solo show, “encoun- ters,” at the Huntsville Museum of Art, Alabama. A catalog of the show with an essay by Peter Baldaia was published by the museum. Messersmith also delivered a lecture about his work during the opening. He is currently in the group show “Fresh & Salty” at the Fort Worth Community Arts Center, Texas, and in the show “Paradise Lost/Paradise Found” at the Morean Arts Center, St. Petersburg, Fl., through March 13.
